The Great Gatsby by F. Scott Fitzgerald is a novel that mainly focuses around a wealthy and mysterious person named Jay Gatsby. He was known for having lavish parties. The novel is narrated by Nick Carraway who moves to West Egg, Long Island and lives next door to Gatsby. The main characters besides Jay Gatsby and Nick Carraway are Tom Buchanan, Daisy Buchanan, Jordan Baker, George Wilson, and Myrtle Wilson. Tom Buchanan is Daisy's husband. He is known for being ignorant and racist who thinks that he's more superior than others. Daisy Buchanan is Nick's cousin who is known for being charming and being the person that Gatsby wants to fall in love with. Jordan Baker is Daisy's friend. She is known for being a professional golf player and being in love with Nick. George Wilson is Myrtle's husband and is known for being a mechanic who owns a garage in the Valley of Ashes. Additionally, Myrtle Wilson is Tom Buchanan's mistress. She is known for being unsatisfied with her marriage to George.

I thought that the novel was fantastic. I liked how Nick finally went to one of the parties Gatsby hosted and finally got to talk with Gatsby. One character I didn't like was Tom Buchanan. This is because I found him to be selfish and aggressive towards others he didn't like. One thing that surprised me about this novel is people spreading a lot of misinformation about Gatsby.

I would recommend this novel to people who want to learn about what the 1920s were really like. I think people who like fictional novels would like this.
